EDITORIAL.

So far as the Editor knows, Mrs. W. H. Caudill, is the only person in Magoffin who owns a ten dollar chicken. This is no reason why we have bought a setting of her Rhode Island Reds. We believe in good stock poultry and we know that this is a great saving when we can get high bred eggs at the small sum of 85 cents.

The farmer needs a general-purpose fowl—one that lays well and one that is large enough for the table. We have never tried the R. R. Reds but they are highly recommended as a farmer's fowl.

If they prove satisfactory we expect to discard others altogether.

These remarks are made unsolicited, as we believe that Mrs. Caudill deserves encouragement for giving the people an opportunity of improving their poultry and are glad to see that our subscribers are patronizing her.

Since the Hazel Green Herald has raised the subscription price from $1.00 to $1.50 per year the following editorial should be food for thought for some of our citizens who think our prices too high

SHALL WE STARVE?

The editor of The Herald has devoted the better part of his life to the people of this section. Notwithstanding many and diverse propositions from citizens of other communities here our labors would have commanded more money, we have stood by the people we first elected to serve.

That we have accomplished some good will not be gainsaid by any one, and had our advice been taken in some cases our efforts would have resulted in much more for the betterment of the country.

Ours has ever been a labor of love for the mountains and we have been content to do our duty in the hope that reward would eventually crown the effort. Prices of materials and labor have increased monstrously and prices of products that enter into our living have likewise advanced, until we have felt it incumbent upon us to raise our prices so that in a measure we could meet these demands upon us.

But the people appear to be slow indeed in responding to our call for assistance by paying an increase of thirty-three and one-third per cent ($1.50) to meet an increase of two hundred to three hundred per cent.

Is this the proper spirit?

After all our labors will the people see us starve rather than meet the slight advance? They seem to think as the song has it, "He was a good old wagon, but he's done broke down." They know our demands are just, but they seem loath to meet them.

—Hazel Green Herald.

BY THE EDITOR.
BOSTON.

See that old building right in the very heart of the business section of the city. We wonder why such an old time structure is permitted to remain in such a modern city.

All is understood when we are told that it is Faneuil Hall, "The Cradle of American Liberty." Here it was that the Boston Tea Party organized. When we think of the role Faneuil Hall played in the early days of that great struggle we have a reverence for the old building. There! What is that? Two women come out with bundles as though it were a store. Upon entering we are awe-stricken to see that the whole first floor is a large market house and scores of men are selling the necessities of life.

We have contempt for these Bostonians until we learn that over 30 years before the Revolution (1742) Mr. Faneuil built and donated this hall to the city, with the understanding that the first floor would be used as a market house, where no rent would be charged, and a second floor a public hall. Since then the first floor has been used as a free market house. We go to the second floor and see some splendid paintings of Revolutionary orators.

Those stirring scenes of the Revolution are witnessed as we linger in this hall and review the past.

We now go to the Old North Church and climb, as thousands of Americans have done, to the belfry arch, where the signals were given by William Dawes, on the 19th of April, 1775, to Paul Revere, who had stationed himself on the opposite shore of Charles' River, to make that memorable midnight ride, so familiar to every American school boy. Longfellow's description of this ride is a gem of Americans literature which should be familiar to everyone. In it Paul Revere said, "Hang a lantern aloft in the belfry arch,

One if by land and two if by sea, And I, on the opposite shore will be Ready to ride and spread the alarm

Through every Middlesex village and farm.

That the country folk may be up and to arm."

We then descend the creaky old stairway and go to the opposite shore, where Paul Revere impatiently waited until he caught the glimmer of the lantern. He mounted his steed and watched until a second one was hung, then knowing that the British were coming by sea, he struck spurs to his steed.

We go in an automobile over the same nineteen miles that Paul Revere rode.

"A hurry of hoofs in a village street,

A shape in the moonlight, a bulk in the dark,

And beneath, from the pebbles, in passing, a spark

Struck out by a steed flying fearless and fleet;

That was all! And yet through the gloom and the light,

The fate of a nation was riding that night;

And the spark struck out by that steed in his flight,

Kindled the land into flame with its heat."

Our hearts are filled with emotion as we near Lexington. "The birth place of American liberty." We stop at a large mass of round boulders, surmounted by a statue of Capt. Parker, standing with an old rifle in his hand. A little further back we see a rifle and powder horn carved on a boulder, estimated to weigh twelve tons.

It was here that Capt. Parker's 120 Minute men calmly stood with the orders, "STAND YOUR GROUND. DON'T FIRE UNLESS FIRED UPON, BUT IF THEY MEANT TO HAVE A WAR LET IT BEGIN HERE."

We see Major Pitcairn advance with an overwhelming force and fire that cruel volley which killed seven and wounded nine Americans.

The last nine miles of our journey brings us to Concord. We spend the night at the Old Colonial Inn, built in 1770 by the grandfather of Henry Thoreau, the poet-naturalist.

We visit the Old North Bridge Here the Americans took a position on the west side of the river to protect their ammunition and other stores, but when they saw smoke arising from the town they feared their homes were being burned and marched toward the bridge. We read the following inscription by Emerson, on a small monument, "By this rude bridge that arched the flood

Their flag to April's breeze unfurled, Here once the embattled farmers stood And fired the shot heard round the world."

Here it was that Capt. Davis fell pierced by two British bullets, on the morning of April 19. Then it was that General Buttrick exclaimed "Fire, fellow soldiers, fire! For God's sake fire! Such a volley came from these farmers that King George's picked soldiers began the retreat toward Boston.

We visit many historical scenes. We go to Emerson's home and at the Sleepy Hollow Cemetery see his monument, which is a large, rough piece of pink granite. We see the original Concord grape vine which is now 80 years of age. We visit the schools and find that more than half a century ago these people sent covered wagons out over the country to collect the children and bring them to school and organized the first consolidated school. These schools are now beginning to be built in Kentucky and other states. We see no idle children—they are all at school.

We stop at Harvard College and see many other places of interest on our return. We cannot spend the whole day sight-seeing as we must be ready to embark on our voyage for England early in the morning.

He Was Late.

"What made you so late?"

"I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs."

PAYROLL HELD UP BY DECISION

OPINION GIVEN BY ASSISTANT ATTORNEY HOGAN RESULTS IN EMBARRASSMENT.

APPROPRIATION IS GONE

Hogan Construes Statute Governing Funds For State School of Reform to Provide For Only Five Thousand Dollars.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Frankfort. — Complications have arisen over the payroll at the state school of reform, which may result in the introduction of a bill at the next session of the general assembly to increase the appropriation for that purpose, and in the meantime the situation has the auditor's department and the prison commission undecided how to proceed.

The embarrassment is in consequence of the discovery that the annual appropriation for the school of reform is only $5,000, while the payroll for February alone amounted to $3,222.35; and in an opinion given Deputy State Auditor G. B. Likens, Assistant Attorney General O. S. Hogan advises him not to issue warrants in excess of the stipulated annual appropriation of $5,000. There is a penalty for exceeding the appropriation. The appropriation for the year, ending June 30, 1913, already has been overpaid three or four times.

Heretofore the statute has been construed as carrying $5,000 quarterly, which would mean an annual appropriation of $20,000. When the February payroll showed a monthly pro rata that would run the annual expenditure over $38,000, the auditor asked the attorney general's department whether he should limit the issue of warrants to the appropriation or honor the demands to any extent under a statute which authorizes the appointment of whatever employees are considered necessary at the school of reform. The statute was investigated and found to read an appropriation of $5,000, payable quarterly, and contained no provision for an appropriation of $5,000 only instead of $20,000.

Rules Against School Superintendent. Under Section 4443 of the new school law the privilege of special charter schools to have their teachers examined by a board appointed by the trustees is abrogated to the extent that those teachers may not draw any of the pro rata apportioned from the school from the state school fund for their salaries, said the court of appeals, reversing the Mercer circuit court in the case of the Harrodsburg Educational Division against County Superintendent Ora L. Adams.

The superintendent had refused to pay to the trustees $843.10 of its proportionate share of the county's pro rata in the state school fund because three of the teachers had not taken the examination required by the common school law. The court said this is no reason for not paying to the district its share of the fund. The share is not sufficient for the pay of eight other teachers, who do hold the proper certificates; but none of this money must be used in paying the three. As the district augments the state fund by local taxation these three teachers may be paid out of local funds. The court suggested that Harrodsburg may organize its school as a city school and adopt its own provisions for the examination of teachers.

Insurance Schedules Sent Out. Schedules of basic insurance rates and charges on dwellings and their contents in all cities and towns in the state, in accordance with the terms of the compromise of the suits of fire insurance companies against the state insurance commission, have been sent out by the commission to the companies, and the suits in these state and federal courts, attacking the rates, promulgated in December, will be dismissed. The new schedule of rates will go into effect May 1. It is stated that the rates are 20 per cent lower than the rates heretofore in effect, though not as low in particular instances as the rates promulgated in December, which were to go into effect. Farm property rates are omitted from the schedule and will be taken up next by the commission, after which mercantile insurance, and special hazards will be considered.

Federal Experts To Come. The federal department of roads has promised Commissioner of Roads R. C. Terrell that experts will be sent from Washington to make addresses before the conference of county road engineers in Louisville the week of April 7 to 12. Road departments of Ohio and Indiana are expected to send representatives to the meeting.

Verdict Against Street Car Company. A verdict for $1,500 awarded Anna Belle Harris, a colored woman, who was accidentally shoved off a crowded street car platform in Covington, was affirmed on appeal of the South Covington & Cincinnati Street Railway Co. from the Kenton circuit court, the court holding that where employees of the car permitted conditions which imperiled the safety of patrons they must exercise precautions necessary to protect the passengers under the circumstances.

JAMES M. COX

Ohio's New Governor who will speak at the meeting of the Kentucky Manufacturers' Association in Louisville in April.

Jim Crow Decision Not Involved.

Carrie Conley, colored, failed to secure a reversal of the Franklin circuit court in a suit for damages against the Central Kentucky Traction Co. She sued for $2,000 damages and recovered $200, but a new trial was granted and the jury found for the defendant. She was a passenger, bound for Lexington, August 13, 1908, during the Bluegrass fair. She and two other negro occupants of the colored compartment were requested to take seats in the front vestibule. She refused and the conductor seated white passengers in the compartment. She alleged she was subjected to great indignities by the conductor and passengers. The court said its opinion did not disturb a former ruling that the separate coach law applies with equal force to the protection of colored people as to whites, and that it dealt only with the question of whether the court below exceeded its authority in granting a new trial.

Farmers To Incorporate.

Having no capital stock, providing that no private pecuniary profits shall be made for any one and that the officers shall serve without remuneration, articles incorporating the Christian County Crop Improvement association have been filed. The association is formed to advance in every way possible the agricultural, horticultural and stock raising interests of the county. The chief feature of the plans already under way is the employment of an expert agriculturist.

Program for Meeting Prepared.

The program committee of the Kentucky Mining Institute, for the meeting to be held May 16 and 17, has selected twenty-four events for the statewide first aid contest to be held May 16, at Lexington, in connection with the spring meeting of the Kentucky Mining Institute, and the judges on the day of the contest will select five out of the problems, and these five problems will be performed by each team participating in the contest.

Peace Day to be Celebrated.

May 18 will be observed by the schools of Kentucky as peace day, in commemoration of the opening of The Hague Peace Congress in 1899. At the request of the American School Peace League, Superintendent of Public Instruction Barksdale Hamlett has designated that day and issued a bulletin requesting all public schools to observe the occasion with appropriate exercises.

Rush For Automobile Licenses.

March records for automobile licenses already have been broken. Thomas Byars, automobile clerk in the office of the secretary of state, has issued 167 licenses since the first of the month, which is 20 per cent more than he issued during the whole of last March. The rush begins in April and continues through May and June.

Court Overrules Motion of Inspector.

The court of appeals overruled the motion of Oil Inspector Castleman for a rehearing of his case against the Standard Oil Co., in which the inspector of Jefferson county has authority only to inspect oil stored there to be sold in Jefferson county or to be shipped into counties where there are no inspectors.

Damages For Lost Leg.

The jury in the federal court trying the case of Sam Baughman, of Lexington, against the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railroad Co. found for Baughman in the sum of $1,600. Baughman, while unloading a car in Lexington, lost a leg.

Will is Set Aside.

J. H. Flege, who died in Louisville in 1863, devising property at the southwest corner of Market and Hapecock streets to the eldest son of his young son brother for life, with remainder over to his children's children, was declared by the court of appeals, affirming the Jefferson circuit court, to be an attempt to entail the estate, and the title is set aside. The will was delivered in the case of E. G. Parry against Rosa H. Burkley. The will was made in Germany.

A SUGGESTION.

"Man is but clay, after all." "In order to keep up with the times, I suppose a modern man ought to be made of reinforced concrete."

Member of the Union.

Men who worked under a former city editor on the Washington Post vouch for the truth of this story about him.

The telegraph editor, so the story goes, got a "flash" one night that John La Farge, the painter, was dead. He called the news out to the city editor, who, catching only the name and profession, yelled to a reporter:

"Willoughby! A painter by the name of La Farge is dead. Rush down to the Central Labor Union and see what you can dig up about him!"

Children's Humor.

The poetry of life is frequently seen in childhood. We have this illustrated in the description of butterflies as "pansies flying."

"A star is a cinder from God's great star," has a wealth of unconscious meaning. But perhaps the finest approach to poetry was made by a tiny tot who defined dew as "the grass crying." "O auntie!" said a little girl, "I've just seen a pencil walking." The nurse who had grown out of fairyland explained it was only an ordinary worm.

Too Late for Answer.

Henry Watterson, the well-known American journalist, told this story at a recent dinner party: "One day when I was the city editor of a small newspaper, a fine turkey was left at the office. We all hankered after the bird, but the editor finally claimed it, took it home, and had it cooked for dinner. The next day a letter was handed in to him, which he opened and read: "Mr. Editor—I sent you a turkey yesterday which had been the cause of much dispute among us. To settle a bet, will you please state in tomorrow's issue what the turkey died of?"

IN A SHADOW.

Inveterate Tea Drinker Feared Paralysis.

Steady use of either tea or coffee often produces alarming symptoms as the poison (caffeine) contained in these beverages acts with more potency in some persons than in others. "I was never a coffee drinker," writes an ill woman, "but a tea drinker. I was very nervous, had frequent spells of sick headache and heart trouble, and was subject at times to severe attacks of bilious colic."

"No end of sleepless nights—would have spells at night when my right side would get numb and tingle like a thousand needles were pricking my flesh. At times I could hardly put my tongue out of my mouth and my right eye and ear were affected."

"The doctors told me I was liable to become paralyzed at any time, so I was in constant dread. I took no end of medicine—all to no good."

"The doctors told me to quit using tea, but I thought I could not live without it—that it was my only stay. I had been a tea drinker for twenty-five years; was under the doctor's care for fifteen."

"About six months ago, I finally quit tea and commenced to drink Postum."

"I have never had one spell of sick headache since and only one light attack of bilious colic. Have quit having those numb spells at night, sleep well and my heart is getting stronger all the time." Name given upon request.

Postum now comes in concentrated, powder form, called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient; there's no waste; and the flavor is always uniform. Sold by grocers everywhere.

BURGLAR HAS LEGAL RIGHT

In England He Is Considered to Have Right to Life, If Not to Liberty.

It seems that the English burglar has a very definite right to his life, if not to liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The Law Times discusses the matter at some length and seems to think that if you shoot a burglar except in a positive defense of your own life it may be nearly as unpleasant for you as for the burglar. A man may defend his person or his property, but he must use no more violence than is absolutely necessary. He may not fire at a burglar before he has begun to burgle, even though he knows that he intends to burgle. He may not fire on him after he has finished burgling and merely to prevent his escape. If he does, and kills the burglar, he will be guilty of manslaughter. You may not kill any man merely because he is assaulting you or stealing your goods. You must prove that your own life was in danger. But there is some compensation for these disabilities. A burglar is usually caught by the police and, when caught, he will be tried at once, and will usually find himself irrevocably in jail on that same day. And if he was armed he will cease to be a danger to society for a good many years. If any appeal be allowed it will be heard in the course of a few days and decided on the spot.

ODD BOX OFFICE REQUESTS

Visitor in New York Who Wanted Seat 9, Row T, Asked for Seat Ninety.

A visitor from out of town appeared at the Metropolitan box office recently. "I would like to have seat No. 90," she said to the man behind the grating.

"There is no such seat in the house," he told her.

"But there must be," she insisted. "A friend of mine in Troy told me it was the best seat in the house, and to be sure and get it, if possible."

The ticket seller thought a moment and handed out a ticket. It was marked, Seat 9, Row T.

"That's the nearest thing to 'ninety' I can give you," said he.

When the buyer had departed he said:

"We have all kinds of funny requests. The other day a funny chap came along and asked for the dog seat. I told him dogs were not allowed. Then he said: 'Well, give me K9 then.'"—New York Journal.

Age of Peat.

Natural peat, as is generally known, is the product of the partial decay of mosses and other plants that grow in swampy places or in damp and foggy regions. Dr. Bergius, a German chemist, is said to have produced artificial peat by subjecting a mixture of cellulose and water to a pressure of more than 6,000 pounds to the square inch and heating the mixture to about 240 degrees centigrade. This treatment continued for twenty-four hours transforms the pulp into a product the constituents of which are identical with those of peat. Calculations based on this new process show that at a temperature as low as that of the earth, it must have required 7,000,000 years to form the deposits of natural peat. This estimate agrees roughly with the calculations of geologists.—Youth's Companion.

What Makes the Corn Pop?

Every one knows and likes that humble but cheerful dainty, pop-corn. But how many can tell what makes the corn pop? A writer in Harper's Weekly explains:

A kernel of pop-corn is filled with tightly packed starch grains. The interior of the kernel is divided into a large number of cells, each of which may be likened to a tiny box, the walls of which are strong enough to withstand considerable pressure from within. Upon the application of heat, the moisture present in each little box is converted into steam that finally escapes by explosion. The grain of corn then literally "turns inside out," and is transformed into a relatively large mass of snow-white starch.

Helpful Remedies.

Do you know that equal parts of turpentine and ammonia will remove paint from clothing no matter how hard it may be? Saturate the paint two or three times and wash the spot with warm water and soap.

If the hands are covered well with soap and it is allowed to dry before polishing the stove, the polish will not adhere to the hands and will wash off without any trouble.

To remove the dust from radiators is an easy task if you possess an electric fan. Place this article on the floor in front of the radiator and apply the current; move the fan up and down until every particle of dust has been blown from the crevices.

Depth of the Sea.

The loftiest mountains in the world are something over five miles high, but there are ocean depths of over six miles. The German survey ship Planet sends word that she has made the deepest sounding thus far taken. About forty sea miles off the north coast of Mindanao, the largest and most southerly of the important islands of the Philippines, the Planet found a depth of 32,078 feet. In other words, the Pacific where the sounding was taken has a depth of 6,077 miles, exceeding by 482 feet the greatest depth hitherto shown.—Durdac Advertiser.

Woman Surely Could Not Be Accused of Having Any Lack of Caution.

One day a very nervous, timid-looking woman, accompanied by a robust farmer, appeared on the platform of a little railway at a remote country town. For a time she devoted her attention to the time table, but she did not find there the information she sought, and she stepped up to the station master as he came out of the office.

"Will you please tell me if the three-fifteen train has gone yet?" she asked. In apparent concern.

"Yes, about twenty minutes ago," he replied.

"And when will the four-thirty be along, do you think?"

"Why, not for some time yet, of course."

"Are there any expresses before then?"

"Not one."

"Any freight trains?"

"No."

"Nothing at all?"

"Nothing whatever."

"Are you quite sure?"

"Certainly I am, or I wouldn't have said so."

"Then," said the timid woman, turning to her husband, "I think we'll cross the tracks, William."—Youth's Companion.

AN EASTER OFFERING

By Dorothy Douglas

REV. MILTON DAVIS entered his study after having eaten a lonesome Easter breakfast and threw himself into a big chair by the window for a few moments of quiet before beginning his strenuous day. He heaved a sigh as he glanced at the empty chair on the opposite side—empty save for the mind picture the young minister: was wont to draw on occasions when the world would seem well lost for the possession of one particular woman.
But that woman had not, as yet, appeared upon the ecclesiastical heart-stone of Rev. Mr. Davis.

There were many fair parishioners who would gladly have been that fortunate maid; their inclinations, however, were restricted to the gifts which constantly found their way to the rectory. The wide couch in the rector's study was a heterogeneous collection of sofa pillows; the walls were lined with biblical subjects, evidently considered the only art appropriate for ministerial eyes. Rev.
Mr. Davis had been the recipient of eighteen pairs of slippers and three house coats.

In his turn, he sought diligently among his flock for the girl who might do; she apparently sunned herself in another fold, for she certainly did not thrive in his pasture.

The choir, which weekly occupied four seats facing the pulpit, gave forth to the little church such quartet music as it felt equal to. It was composed entirely of village talent.
Jimmie Langhorn, the tenor, considered the world and all its machinations a joke; if the soprano felt a jolt in her side when sustaining a high G it was nothing more nor less than Jimmie's elbow prodding her along. The contralto was a small maiden to whom the tenor made love
during the darkness of the sermon;
the bass singer was also the choirmaster.

The soprano, a young matron, and Jimmie Langhorn were fast friends, and many a plot against ministerial bachelorhood was hatched between them. It seemed to them a shame that so good-looking a minister should remain a bachelor.

So it happened that as Rev. Mr.
Davis bemoaned the singleness of his own state and others bemoaned it for him, the god of love entered his study.
His buxom housekeeper was the literal bearer, and she offered it to him as a package, labeled and wrapped in much tissue paper. Upon being un-swathed the Easter gift proved to be a small marble statue of Cupid.

"And which of your lambs is it this time?" she asked with motherly interest, and noticing surprise on the rector's face.

The minister read the card: "From the soprano, Easter greetings."
"And her a married woman!"
sighed Mrs. Mallory. "It's a wonder some of them don't offer themselves

Heaved a Sigh as He Glanced at the Empty Chair.

as housekeepers!" She made her exit with high scorn for the susceptible sex of which she was an humble member.

"It certainly seems odd," reflected Rev. Mr. Davis, casting a quizzical glance at the small god of love. "I had not suspected Mrs. Wade of a secret attachment—for me—but you represent a subtle hint of some kind."
He smiled.

He called up Mrs. Wade. No; she had not sent it. Her voice, over the phone, sounded more or less indignant at the idea.

Rev. Mr. Davis prepared for his Easter service and dismissed the thought of the mysterious gift.

The door leading to the chancel faced the choir. As the minister entered, his eyes lifted a moment and met those of a girl who occupied the soprano's usual place in the choir, and for a moment he had apprehensions. Was it possible that the Easter music, after all the careful preparation, was to be sung by the substitute
—a stranger? Where was Mrs. Wade?

But as the service progressed the minister realized that his fears were groundless. And that was not all—he was keenly conscious of the presence of the new soprano.

After service, while he stood shaking hands with his departing parishioners, according to his usual custom,
he anticipated with unusual pleasure his meeting with the girl who had so graciously assisted the choir. He was anxious to congratulate her and thank her.

"Doctor Davis," said the voice of Jimmie Langhorn at his side, "I want to present you to this sister of mine, Muriel, our rector, Doctor Davis," said turning to the girl. "She cried to be allowed to sing in our choir, so we had to let her. Mrs. Wade has a cold, you know, and was glad of an opportunity to be excused. Sis, here, has just returned from Germany and was anxious to try her wings." Jimmie Langhorn joked even with the minister.

Muriel cast an indignant glance at her brother as her hand met that of the minister. "It isn't so, Doctor Davis," she said with mounting color, for the young minister's gray eyes had not once left her face. "He and Mrs. Wade made dire threats until I consented."

"For which they deserve a gold medal," affirmed the dominie.

"Don't!" exclaimed Jimmie. "She is conceited enough now, between her voice and her collection of statuary!"

"Statuary!" inquired the minister.
"Then perhaps I can thank you, Miss

"Yes," Returned the Girl.

Langhorn, for the dainty bit I received this morning?"

Jimmie became suddenly interested in the arrangement of the music for the evening service.

"I'm sorry," laughed Muriel, "but I happen not to be the guilty party."

"Some one sent me Easter greetings in the form of a little marble god of love; and I have already in-sulted Mrs. Wade by accusing her of sending it."

"And me! An absolute stranger—I like that!" Muriel spoke with some asperity and her manner, the minister noted, was much like her brother's.

"Oh, please. Miss Langhorn," begged the minister contritely. "I'm really awfully sorry."

"Well—I'll think about it." She cast him one glance and turned to Jimmie. "Come, brother mine, or we won't get any dinner." She turned again to Doctor Davis. "Can't you take dinner with us?"

"Under the condition that you will all come and eat cold turkey with me after the service tonight. I have a housekeeper who must be appeased."

Since Muriel expected to be in Lee only a month before going to the city to start a concert career, Rev. Dr.
Davis lost no time in laying siege to her heart. The minister's declinative chirp denoted that when he knew what he wanted he went straight for it.

Luckily, they lived in a healthy, cheerful community where calls upon the world-weary were not necessary and the dominie robbed no one in the time devoted to courting. Since it was nearing the end of the opera se-son, he took Muriel frequently to that realm of wonderful music.

When she sang at concerts in the city, he was always there to escort her home and carry her floral tributes. These flowers invariably lent their sweetness to some humble dwelling in the village.

"Isn't it wonderful to be blessed with the power to help our fellow men?" Rev. Mr. Davis voiced this sentiment one evening as they walked home through the lanes after having called to see old Mrs. Gabel, who didn't get to church often on account of the distance. Muriel had sung some of the familiar old hymns for her until the dear old soul had wept from sheer happiness.

"Yes," returned the girl with tears not far from her own eyes. "I have wondered lately if all the applause of a great, clapping audience will ever bring me one-tenth of the joy that the tears in Mrs. Gabel's eyes brought." She looked out over the broad country. "Anyway, I shall often look out over the footlights and see—not a swarm of faces—but this!"
Muriel's gesture swept in the starry heavens, the moonlit road and the great arch of trees.

Suddenly the dominie turned and took her in his arms. "You are not going on any stage! It would take you too far from me. You may do all the concert work—all the church singing you like—but always I will come for you when night falls. Your brother Jim sent me the god of love and I am going to hold on to it!"
What do you think about it, dear?"

"Evidently I am not to be allowed to think," murmured Muriel, but with finality in her resignation.

paper Syndicate.)

SWALLOW HAD LONG JOURNEY

Positive Proof That Bird Traveled the Distance From England to South Africa.

The capture of a swallow bearing an aluminum ring in Natal, South Africa, the other day, has resulted in an astonishing insight into the migratory habits of birds. From a number and address stamped on the ring it was discovered that the swallow was one of 11,483 British birds marked in a similar way last summer by enthusiasts, desiring to learn more as to the routes taken by bird migrants, and whether birds return again to their previous nesting sites. This systematic marking of birds began in 1909, since when nearly 32,000 have been "ringed." About three per cent. are afterwards noted, but the swallow reported from Natal appears to have made the longest flight so far. A black-headed gull ringed as a nestling in Yorkshire in July, 1911, was found in February, 1912, in Flores, Azores.
A starling ringed in Berkshire in January, 1912, reached Helsingfors, Finland, in April. A teal ringed in Staffordshire in the autumn of 1910, was found at Dalarne, Sweden, July, 1911.

BURNED AND ITCHED BADLY

burn on my left arm. I caught cold in it and it was all sore and ulcerated.
The sore was as large as a silver dol-had pus running out of it. I suffered terribly from burning pain; could not sleep for two weeks it burned and itched so badly. I applied — Salve, recommended as his own, but got no relief. I then commenced using the

the burned parts with Cuticura Soap

A young woman of pleasing and pic-

a bright-eyed, restless fox terrier, eager to be let out. The woman carried a leash in her left hand, and the dog had on a collar with a snap. An in-

She struggled on six blocks up Mad-

the hamper, snapped the leash on the

NOTED SPEAKERS WILL BE HEARD

When Kentucky Educational Association Meets.

GATHERING AT LOUISVILLE.

Program Committee of K. E. A. Extremely Fortunate in Securing Services of Many Distinguished Educators and Speakers of National Reputation. Partial List Given Here.

If never there, you ought to go.
If ever there, you'll want to go.

The program committee of the Kentucky Educational association has been extremely fortunate in securing the services of practically all the prominent speakers that were originally selected for the gathering in Louisville on April 30 and May 1, 2 and 3. The music will be quite varied, as it is planned to have high school glee clubs, class choruses and organ recitals.

Before becoming president of the Armour Institute of Technology of Chicago Dr. Gunsaulus occupied some of the largest pulpits in that city. Whether Dr. Gunsaulus talked in his church or in one of Chicago's great theaters, he always had a large audience to listen to him say big things in a splendid, big way.

Dr. Gunsaulus' lecture dates have carried him all over the country in the winter, and during the summer he is always in demand as a popular Chautauqua talker. One of the finest things about Dr. Gunsaulus is that, although he is popular, he has never failed to say strong, vigorous things.

Colonel Henry Exall.

It will be an inspiration to the trustees who attend the Kentucky Educational association to listen to Colonel Exall of Texas. Last January the Commercial club of Louisville had Colonel Exall as the speaker at the annual New Year gathering and he simply electrified the men present.

Something over two years ago Colonel Exall decided that it was time for Texas to take care of her soil. Now, when Colonel Exall decides things ought to be done the things usually have a way of getting done. He at once inaugurated the Texas Industrial congress, which offered $10,000 in gold as prizes for crops in all parts of Texas. It was soon evident that the $10,000 in gold was the least expensive part of the undertaking for the various contestants must be kept in touch with each other and the congress. The undertaking cost $30,000 for the first year. Colonel Exall raised the funds. This year 4,000 men, women, boys and girls contested for the prizes and the whole state is awake to the fact that results are being produced. In fact this feeling has become so strong that a group of business men are preparing to finance the Texas Industrial congress for a period of three years.

DR. FRANK W. GUNSAULUS.

Dr. Charles Evans.

Dr. Charles Evans is president of the State Normal school at Edmond, Okla. He is a transplanted Kentuckian, and like any number of transplanted Kentuckians he has made good in the state of his adoption. He grew up with the country, and grew up big. In fact he has grown so big that he is now being spoken of as the next state superintendent of Oklahoma.

His new book, "Growing a Life," published by Rand, McNally & Co., is receiving favorable comment from prominent educators in all parts of the country. It will probably be adopted as one of the Kentucky reading circle books for the ensuing year.

Dr. Alston Ellis.

Another ex-Kentuckian on the program of the Kentucky Educational association is Dr. Alston Ellis, president of the Ohio university at Athens. For twelve years he has been making history at the University of Ohio, so he is sure to have something worth while to say to the teaching force of his home state.

It is said that his love for Kentucky has never been dimmed by his service out of the state. In fact it is rumored that he will build a handsome home at Fort Thomas, Ky., where he will reside after leaving the university in 1915.

Some of the newspapers reported that John Kash and others formerly of this county were drowned at Hamelinton, Ohio. We have learned that no former citizen of Magoffin was drowned at Hamelinton.

"ANOTHER PRECIENT HEARD FROM." FALCON.

Have you thought the matter over as to the best way to better moral civil and religious conditions in our county? We of this neighborhood, have come to believe that to make good and useful men and women, we must begin with the children. Children are but little men and women and if neglected while young, the great opportunity of training these persons is forever gone.

Therefore, let us turn our attention more in this coming election of the selection of a School Superintendent than to any other officer. Our people of this section are talking MUCH about the Editor of the "Mountaineer". Everybody says they admire the fearless manner in which he has published his paper. A man to serve in any public capacity should not be afraid to stand by the right, regardless of what others say, and we believe the Editor is that kind of man. How is your neighborhood? Do you not want a man for Superintendent who is not afraid to do right?

Let us hear from you.

NOTE—We desire to thank the writer as we fully appreciate such unsolicited compliments and if elected to this, the most important office in the county, shall make every effort to elevate every school from the heads of the creeks to the county seat.

A Chicago school teacher tells with great gusto of the shrewd little "colored brother" who once arrived at school provided with a most unusual excuse for tardiness. "I couldn't help bel'n' late, please, teacher," he bubbled, shrilly. "Somepin happened to us las' night. My maw, she went ter bed wit' a headache, and when she wakes up dis mornin', dere's two little quins (twins) on one each side ob her, and—she don't know nuffin 'bout 'em tell she wake up. An' my maw, she so s'prised, she can't got up ter get me ready for school!"
